

Roxanne's Values Takeaway

My top takeaway for Values is that I believe that once you have everybody share their values note them down, as the facilitator, note them down and then throughout your training sessions always attempt to refer back to these values because I feel that that's what brings us all together especially when we're all practitioners within the same sort of services such as Children's Services. Our values are the reason why we know we're committed to our roles within Children's Services. We all want the same thing, so it all ties us together. So if we can thread that through our training programme and continue to link back to them values, I believe it'll make a big difference.
